I have nothing to say. I'm too busy.

—Col. PARTRIDGE, immediately after the shake-up.

On its face, the police shake-up of today—involving four inspectors, twenty-one captains and eight sergeants—appears to be a formidable transaction; in fact, it is regarded in police circles as an attempt to satisfy the public that there is activity in the Department.

It was up to Commissioner Partridge to do something, and the more his action is analyzed the more disappointing it is to those who expected him to make a radical move.

Although the names of twenty-one captains figure in the transfers and assignments, seven of these are the names of the sergeants promoted to captaincies this morning; three transfers are made in Brooklyn for reasons not apparent to persons outside of that borough.

Two transfers—that of Capt. Allaire from night duty in the Central Office to the Steamboat Squad and that of Capt. Herlihy from the Steamboat squad to the position made vacant by Capt. Allaire—have no significance whatever, it is declared.

In connection with the "system," there were only eight transfers of captains worthy of consideration, so far as "reform" in the department is concerned. The transfers of inspectors appears to be of the makeshift order.

Figured down to actual accomplishment, the great shake-up is of no more importance than several that were made by the York board, Chief Devery or Commissioner Murphy.

It was expected that Inspector Adam Cross would be sent to the woods. Instead, he changes precincts with Inspector Brooks. Inspector Cross is now in charge of Headquarters. He is responsible for the "Central Office and the Wall Street section. He is closer to Commissioner Partridge than he was before. Friends of the Commissioner explain that in putting Cross in a position where his work will be under the immediate eye of the head of the Department Col. Partridge has fixed it so that he can watch the handsome Inspector. On the other hand, there is an opinion that Inspector Cross would not have been disturbed at all had it not been for the resentment felt toward him by James Reynolds, at present Secretary to the Mayor, formerly interested in reform work in the east side "red light" district.

There is a general opinion that Inspector Brooks will become the right-hand man of Commissioner Partridge.

There is nothing against Inspector Brooks as a policeman and it is believed that his advice will be on the side of good to the Department.

HOPES FOR O'REILLY.

The most important transfer on the list is that of Capt. Miles O'Reilly from Kingsbridge to the Oak street precinct, changing places with Capt. Watson Vredenburg.

The transfer of Capt. Vredenburg is no surprise, though he has succeeded in warding it off for a long time. He wants to get out of the Department, being entitled to retirement, but he hated to go under fire. It may be that he will conclude to ask to be placed on the retired list. He lives away up on the upper west side in a neighborhood that is dear to him, and his Brooklyn assignment is bound to be distasteful.

Commissioner Partridge doubtless is building hopes upon Capt. O'Reilly. The Brooklyn policeman has a record as a vigorous cleaner-up of vicious precincts. The bantamweight of Inspector Thompson to Queens Borough was not unexpected. He has been in bad odor with the Administration. Murphy, the new man, has never been mixed in Department politics, and it may be that he is brought over to try some experiments with captains in the Third Precinct District.

FLOOD "REWARDED."

It was expected that Capt. Flood, who was Devery's bosom friend in headquarters and was made a captain through Devery's influence, would be allowed to continue to vegetate out in Alexander avenue. Instead he gets the Charles street station, changing with Capt. Martens. The reason for this move cannot be figured out, but Capt. Flood is one of the "wheat" men on the force and has undoubtedly succeeded in "squirreling" himself with the new administration.

He said he would make a statement in a day or two.

ATTEMPTED MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Frank S. Cermiski was shot in the breast by an unknown man late this afternoon on Twenty-first street, between Third and Fourth avenues, Brooklyn. He then shot himself in the head and died instantly. He was taken to Seney Hospital. His condition is critical.

FIRE TRUCK DRIVER SHOWS GREAT COURAGE.

Driver McManus, of Fire Truck 14, stationed at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street near Lexington avenue, showed great courage to-day when he was hurled from his truck which was proceeding to a fire at full speed. One of the front wheels ran off the axle, jettisoning the truck down violently. McManus was flung over the heads of his galloping horses. He clung to the reins and managed to swing the team in toward the curb, thereby avoiding a collision with an approaching One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street cross-town car, which was filled with women passengers. They were greatly excited. McManus was badly bruised, but able to return to the truck-house.

AWNTS CITY TO TAKE WANAMAKER LOTS.

The Alderman Committee on Streets and Highways today held a meeting at which Comptroller Grout submitted a plan for the avoidance of a curve on the East Side division of the Rapid Transit road from Lafayette place into Fourth avenue. Mr. Grout's plan is to condemn the city property on the northwest corner of Eighth street and Fourth avenue extending eighty-seven feet west on Eighth street and 200 feet north on Fourth avenue, estimated worth about $300,000. These are the property of John Wanamaker, who sent a protest against the city attempting to acquire the property.

MITCHELL HERE TO CONFER WITH WRIGHT ON STRIKE.

A conference will be held at the Manhattan Hotel to-night between President Mitchell, of the coal miners' organization, and Carroll D. Wright, United States Commissioner of Labor, who was sent here by President Roosevelt to settle the coal strike. Mr. Mitchell was summoned to this city from Wilkesbarre by Commissioner Wright.

FIRE IN CHICAGO HOSPITAL—PANIC AMONG PATIENTS.

CHICAGO, June 9.—The Hospital of St. Luke's Society at Twentieth and Wabash avenue took fire at 3.10 o'clock and is burning rapidly. A panic ensued among the patients, but every effort is being made to get them all out of the building, which is a seven story brick structure, and was formerly the Woodruff Hotel. It is rumored that four patients perished.

(Special to The Evening World.)

POLO GROUNDS, June 9.—The Pittsburgh Pirates were here again this afternoon. They had their Panama hats with them and their bats, too. Hats, of course, have nothing to do with a ball game, but it was probable that their exhibition of panache would be so severe to-day that they would serve as victims for the Giants. It was hoped so, anyway, and the Smiths took extraordinary measures to pull out a victory.

It was exactly 2 o'clock when the boys in their white uniforms got on the field. Not a Pirate was sighted. They took bats and balls from the clubhouse and then began an hour and a half of work.

Taylor's Glass Arm.

Luther Taylor, with his arm in such shape that the rattle of glass was audible when he waved it, was out serving some curves. Well, the Giants straightened them out in fine shape. If they only could do it in the game in the same manner there would be no doubt of the result, even with the slugging Pirates against them. But it would be like one dreaming that he was a millionaire to calculate on such a result.

One thing the Giants had to be thankful for anyway, and that was that this day marked one of the season's farewells of the boys from Smoky Town. The leader of the Harlequins, as usual, wanted to impress the visitors with his specialty of quick catches, and that was probably the reason a new batting order was offered. There were no new men on the list, wonderful, indeed.

New Batting Order.

Why the fans have come to look for new Giants with the same instinct they do to the dawning of a new day. Johnny Dunn no longer led his team all the bat. His infrequency at landing out safeties was a bad example to set, and the name of Brodie led all the rest.

Capt. Smith waved from the fogel way of giving the catcher so prominent a place on the batting list as fifth, and away down to eighth dropped the names of two Giant backstops. There were two because there was not a decision as to whether Bowerman or Yeager would catch.

But one latest change was not the doing of Horace Fogel. Poor Horace, his has indeed been a hard row. There was the Giants' most disastrous tour through the West. Then came the death of his father. Now he has something new to worry him. His son is ill with pneumonia, and a brother is in Philadelphia Hospital ill with smallpox. On top of all this a story has gained ground that he is no longer the Giants' manager.

There is no one who will say that he is or not. Anything is apt to happen with the Giants these days and the deposition of a manager would do nothing to create any great amount of surprise.

Fogel was at the grounds this morning, but went away again. According to report, he has gone in search of new men. May good luck attend his efforts.

Sparks to Pitch.

If one could depend solely on pitchers for a result, a fellow could make lots of money this afternoon if he were a better wagering on the Giant. For then Frank Smith was the man who was slated to work. His performance against the Pirate crew have been exceedingly good and his fine condition now warranted a hard day's work for the visitors to carry off victory.

Jesse Taubert, a left-handed wielder of a baseball as ever, stepped into the box, was the fellow on whom the ball to Leach and to Leach was a hard nut to crack.

Sparks was his first ball. Bransfield dropped a fly into Brodie's hands and Walter got the ball to Leach in time to double up Leach on one run. Ritchey singled Brodie's roller for a moment, but recovered in time to retire the slow-moving giant. Bean's knock to Leach was a hard nut to crack. The safe couldn't find it and Joe was safe. Leach was a victim at second on Smith's safe to Ritchey. Capt. George was doubled up at first.

Second Inning.

Bowerman made a good catch when he got Leach's foul fly. He took it about a yard from the grandstand. Smith's fly hooked safe for a while, but Jones got it all right. Tannehill booted a little fly and Leach took it. No runs.

Doyle dropped a safe one just over Wagner's head and he moved to second.

M. L. Cohen and A. S. Rosenthal Held in First
Prosecution for Alleged Great Custom-House Frauds.

Martin L. Cohen and Abraham S. Rosenthal, composing the Japanese silk importing firm of A. S. Rosenthal & Co., No. 43 Greene street, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields this afternoon on the charge of having fraudulently made entries of silk and cotton goods, imported from Yokohama.

There are three specific complaints, involving sums of $500, $250 and $5,000, sums the Government is alleged to have been defrauded of.

Ex-Judge Dittenhoefer appears for the prisoners and Wickham S. Smith, who was specially appointed by United States District Attorney-General Burnett to look into the alleged frauds, appeared for the Government.

Mr. Smith asked that a high bail be fixed in each case, as he said the alleged frauds ran up into the hundreds of thousands.

Ex-Judge Dittenhoefer argued that the amount before the Commissioner was less than $5,000, and that such a sum would be ample.

After further argument U. S. Commissioner Shields fixed bail in the sum of $10,000 each for each offense, making $30,000 bail for each man. Leo Schlesinger qualified for $50,000, going bail in each case.

Mr. Smith when asked what the amount of the Government's loss is declined to say, but said that the firm had made an average of more than one importation a week and that the undervaluations made by them of goods from Japan amounted to from $500 to $5,000 in each case. The total would be large, he said. How much he declined to state.

ADVANCE GUARD'S
STANDARD STAKES

Astarita Takes the Astoria Stakes—Roehampton Badly Beaten in Handicap by Col. Bill and Others.

(Special to The Evening World.)

GRAVESEND RACE TRACK, June 9.—The Brooklyn Jockey Club entered upon its last week of racing this afternoon. Secretary McIntyre handed out a card of seven races brimful of good things and promising hot finishes in every event.

The stake feature was the Standard Stakes, which had Advance Guard and Gold Heels named as starters, but up to the time for the first race Gold Heels was regarded as a doubtful starter.

The weather was delightfully cool and bracing and the track in perfect condition. The attendance was unusually large for a Monday, due no doubt to the fact that there were seven races of a very attractive character.
